Information about Cookies and Their Use

In accordance with the provisions of Section 89 of Act No. 127/2005 Coll., on Electronic Communications, we hereby inform you that our website, anywhere.legal, uses cookies to enhance user experience and optimize functionality. Cookies are small text files that our servers send to your computer or device to allow better use of our platform, tailor content to your preferences, and improve user-friendliness.

Cookies are widely used across the internet and generally improve the usability of websites by storing useful information, especially for users returning to the same site. If you visit anywhere.legal using the same device and browser, cookies help your computer remember your previous interactions with the site, such as which pages you visited and your preferred settings.

Types of Cookies Used

We utilize different types of cookies on our platform to ensure optimal performance and a better user experience:

- Strictly Necessary Cookies: These cookies are essential for you to browse our website and use its features. Without these, certain services and functionalities, like secure login, cannot be provided.
- Analytical Cookies: These cookies allow us to gather anonymous aggregate information about how users interact with the website, including which features are used and how often. This helps us improve the structure and content of our platform. Analytical cookies on anywhere.legal are set by third parties like Google Analytics.
- Functional Cookies: These cookies store your preferences to enhance your browsing experience, such as remembering the language version you last used or other custom settings.

Purpose of Using Cookies

We use cookies for the following purposes:

- Statistical Analysis: Cookies help us track website traffic and usage statistics, including how many users return to the site, how they navigate through it, and which features they use. This enables us to continuously improve the site's functionality and content to better serve our users.

- Network Security: Cookies are used to support the secure operation of the website.

For this purpose, we use tools such as Google Analytics. To learn more about Google Analytics and how it processes your data, visit Google Analytics.

No Personal Identification

We do not use cookies for purposes beyond those outlined above. Cookies on our website are not linked with any personal data, and we handle them in a way that ensures users cannot be personally identified through them.

Managing Cookies and Browser Settings

Most web browsers (such as Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox, Google Chrome, Microsoft Edge, etc.) allow you to manage cookies. You can configure your browser to block cookies or delete them manually. This can be done for specific sites or for all websites. However, please note that disabling or blocking cookies may impact the full functionality of our platform and certain features may not work as intended.

For more detailed instructions on managing and disabling cookies, you can refer to your browser's help resources:

- Internet Explorer
